The Political Situation.

The recent Kuklux manifesto of the President foreshadows the worst fears of discerning persons. It assures us that the Force Act is indeed a revolution of our system. Gen. Graxr appears to be an uncalculating as well as a dogmatic man, and, in the present state of the public mind, this is the most dangerous of characters. The times are out of joint. The general politics of the country are purposeless. Obduracy out of power is but a foil for obdurscy in power, which is well-nigh supreme. With the legislation of Congress in his hand and the army at his back, the President is as eafe in his authoracy as Louis NAPOLEON ever was. He means business. There is but one interpretation for his proclamation as there was but one for the Kuklux bill. It is the prelude to the overthrow of all liberty; and the unhappiest part of it is that there is small reason to expect resistance from the people who are really able to resist. The warnings we are now giving are derided. They are whisted down the wind as partnanisms. They get no response anywhere. Presently, when the centralizing machine has done its preparatory work, and perfected itself, and we find ourselves bound hand and foot, the scoffers of to-day will relieve themselves with a few shrugs and settle down into the importalistic, one-man power they are now, by their skepticism prelude to the overthrow of all liberty; and the unhappiest part of it is that there is small reason to expect resistance from the people who are really able to resist. The warnings we are now giving are derided. They are whistled down the wind as partisanisms. They get no response anywhere. Prosently, when the centralizing machine has done its preparatory work, and parfected itself, and we find ourselves bound hand and foot, the scoffers of to-day will relieve themselves with a few shrugs and settle down into the importalistic, one-man power they are now, by their skepticism and indifference, assisting in its plans and and indifference, assisting in its plans and cure it. The President now takes a step in advance. The Kuklux bill is to apply "everywhere," and "everywhere" means that it is to be enforced whereever Democrats are numerous enough to be troublesome. Before the Presidential election the machinery will work well and we shall see it work in a very lively ness of spirit rather than a lack of ap-preciation of the dangers around us and before us. Two or three newspapers have been creating much ado about noth-mg over the negro question. Two or three others are still riding the recon-struction hobby. These things are not of much account. That which is most distressing and ominous is the want of definite aim and concert of action which is to be seen on every hand. The house definite aim and concert of action which is to be seen on every hand. The house is not so much divided against itself, for there is really not much difference of opinion and sentiment in the South, as over-crowded with cumbrous and uscless furniture, the debris of a by-gone time, which blocks up the passageways and confuses the sense. All that we can do so to set our house in order and keep it so. For the present our influence we can do it out our mouse in order and keep it so. For the present our influence on national politics must needs be oblique and negative. We can only affect them by the wisdom of domestic thriit. Large talk may be very fine and pleasing. But been further from the treats of the case.

Robliscon and two other colored delegates, were present and one of them was appointed door-keeper in connection with two white mea, and they voted in cancus as other delegates, and were treated with every mark of respect."

John Leaferer, whose clopement with his wire's neice, one Mrs. Susau Spencer, from Calloway county, was published some time description of him, and, left in destitute circumstances by has abandonment, she hope at the connection of the connecti very gloomy. There is a ray of light in Gen. Sherman's speech at New Orleans. But even this is shaded by the reflection of civil war; for it is certain that Gen. Grant does not mean to quit the White House except at the point of the bayonet.

The Peace Negotiations. One of the principal reasons that prearticles of peace by the members of the peace commission at Brussels is the con-stant endeavor of the French commissioners to ameliorate the harsh conditions that have been imposed upon France, and particularly to decrease by all possible means in their power the fearful war indemnity extorted by Prussia. They attempt to deduct from them the heavy requisitions made by the Germans during the war and afterward and the claims of certain private citizens who have suffered serious losses by certain unjustifiable pro-ceedings of the Germans. But their prin-cipal item which they desire to deduct is the value of the many state domains which are situated in the ceded provinces. They say that according to the peace pre-liminaries the French government ceded to the German Emperor all its rights and titles on Alsace and Lorraine. But this reterred only to political rights, the rights of sovereignty, and involved no independent property. They argue this as follows: This cession, as every one knows, does not affect the interests one knows, does not affect the interests and property of private persons who live in those districts. It simply means that the conquered country will henceforth become a part of Germany, but not a single sou of private property passes by such a cession into the imperial German treasury. Every inhabitant remains in the undisturbed possession of his fortune. Now, the French government has in Alsatia and Lorraine property of an immense value. It has established there lately a great many factories and industrial establishments. It owns immense tracts of iorests there, which were bought and improved by the money of France. Shall all this property belonged to private persons it is quite plain that Germany could in the property persons it is quite plain that Germany could a not obtain it without paying a proper coulvient. Germany, which is collecting such an immense war indemnity besides? It all the strong of the state of affairs caisa in the Liberty Hill neighborhood, origitating in the bad conduct and inceediary teachings of a fellow named Vaughn, living in that vicinity. Only the fortecanance of the citizens beyond the point at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue has so far averted bloodshed. Thursday of last week, a justice's court there was broken up by an armed band of eightly negroes.

In provide the whole, the organic parts were destroyed. The consequences were soon apparent. In Spain the extended by one of the gr

The Biate manages them in the interests of all inhabitants in common, but it does not own them as a person owns a lot or a farm. It cannot sell them for a know sum, a lot or a farm. It cannot sell them for a know sum, a deprive the halabitants of their legitimate use. Its taght own them is derived solely som for right of evereignty in those districts. This the French commissioners claim to be the public property, which passes into the hands of another government, without further equivalent, as soon at the latter acquires sovereignty over the respective dutricts.

But a Stella sets as a private had your sell of the hands of a more all maintains this overeignty and yet leaves every creature tree, assumed to themselves precisely and the stellar section of the section o

But a State sets as a private individual manner from other public property.

However just these recriminations of the French commissioners may be, we do not believe that the German Government will accede to their demands. It has the power and the will to use it. We also believe that THIRRS is aware of the fact, and that peace would have been concluded ere this had the continuance of the German occupation of the northern torts of Paris not been desirable for the Versailles Government.

secure and protect our own peculiar in-terests, would render to the whole counand indifference, assisting in its plans and schemes.

The war iever at the North has really never died out. The prejudices engendered by the war are still strong and general. By leave of these, and trusting to their power, the Radical leaders arranged and enseted the Kukhux bill. Order must prevail at the South—thesame sort of order which prevailed at Warsaw—even it all freedom is destroyed to secure it. The President now takes a step in advance. The Kukhux bill is to apply "everywhere," and on not set ourselves up to play the monitor to any section of the country, North or South, East or West. We have no taste for the office if it were accorded to us. But we profess to love, and do love, the whole country, and it is our duty and our privilege to write plainly and fearlessly of what threatens the liberties and welfare of the fistory of the world.

what threatens the liberties and welfare of all. We are all embarked in the same boat, and cannot separate if we would. That has been sufficiently tried, and must be considered settled forever. We must all bide the same late. The wave that swamps a single State must sooner or later enguli all. It is from this standpoint and in this spirit that we write.

Before we can master and manage this centrallzing tendency, we must understand where clse. Beiore we can master and manage this centralizing tendency, we must understand its causes and be able to collate and compare the effects which it has produced in other ages and countries since it first began. We shall then see what its real bearings and demands are as an agency of nature, and what is merely adventitious to it and has been put upon it by the ignorance or crait of men. What must be yielded to it, and what can be saved from it? What is and was can be saved from it? What is the essential movement to which we are required to conform, and what are its mere abuses and collateral results? Where is the natural current, and where the cre-vasse? We may depend upon it that everything demanded of us by this unity-portion or section of the country, but to the whole and every part alike. First, it is important to ascertain with distinctness the precise point in this uni-fying movement at which we stand to day, We can form no trustworthy judgment of the present without a close and searching study of the past; and the very breadth and magnificence of the subject exact a comprehensive method of treatment.

A thousand years ago, or a little more, the world had never seen what could properly be called a nation. The vast oriental empires that had successively tri-umphed over and oppressed manking, were but agglomerations of many differwere but agglomerations of many differ-ent tribes and races temporarily cruahed logether by a common conqueror. They were endued with no indwelling and cre-ative principle of life; they were not devel-oped from within; they were heaped tooped from within; they were heaped to-gether from without. They did not grow; they were manufactured with a single im-plement—the sword—and bound by a single cement—blood. Political life and single cement—blood. Political life and organization, in the proper sense of the term, began in Greece. Its vesicles were independent cities. Within these cells, political personalities were built up, feebly united by a common lineage and language, separated by Jealousies and engaged in constant strike. Rome followed, but was a conquering city, not a nation. Out of the ruins of her empire was built the structure of modern Europe. The earliest condition of modern Europe was a mixture of Oriental and Roman society. The empire of Charlemanne was, in some rogatives which even The Highest does not exercise, and amote down private right in order that there might be public order. Look at dead Spain and convulsed and dying France, and say whether it would be well to copy their example. Under existing circumstances there is no hope for those countries because they secreted the very conditions of secure and permanent existence in order that they might become nations. If they could go back a thousand years and correct their mistake all would be well, but they cannot patch the error over now. The tree has fallen and it must lie. The moral they have indirectly and unconstrained to with other size. moral they have indirectly and uncon-sciously taught the world far exceeds in value all that they have done by their direct efforts; but we fear that many ages will pass away before the full meaning of that lesson will be extracted and ap-

The progress which this unitying movement has made in our own country is apparent. The thirteen original colonies were as distinct and independent as Australia and Canada or Athena and Sparta. First, and the second of time and by the working of natural causes, where the mot a consideracy, then into a iederal union. Precisely where we stand to-day we shall not at present attempt to say, but clearly it is at a point in the poynd the singular conditions of a iederal union. The working of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is a second of the same forces that constructed modern Europe is thus clear and indisputable in our case; and, what is more, they have worked here and, what is more, they have worked here with a celerity, volume and marrelous precision known nowhere else. We may be sure way so far as these forces tend to the unification of the country, to the assimilation of all its parts, to the development and elaboration of an organic political personality, it would be the wildest folly to oppose them, even if this were in any sense desirable. In that aspect they are arresistable, they are a part of the very universe and infinite. But they are as succeptible of guidance as any other force of nature. Wisdom card discover the law that governs them, and can direct and modify their action, so that they shall be modify their action, so that they shall be altogether beneficent and not destructive. Provincialism is no remedy for any evil these forces bring in their train. We might

The Hon. VICTORIA C. WOODBULL says, through the columns of Woodhull & Claffin's Weekly, that she devotes $25,000 a year to the cause of woman suffrage. The cause of woman suffrage and its triends everywhere ought to be grateful to the Hon. Mrs. Woodfull, for her generosity in mentioning the fact, as it is impossible that they could ever have suspected it if

BUTLER has been so often told, within the last year or two, by his contemporaries in Congress, that he is a har and a scoundrel, that he thinks there must be something wrong going on when one of them happens to speak to him without telling him so. without telling him so.

A. T. STEWART has contributed camel's-hair shawl to the Home for Friend less Children at Springfield, Massachu-setts. This is both generous and judicious on the part of Mr. STEWART, for a parcel of children without a camel's hair shawl are friendless indeed.

The Bible declares that "of him to whom much is given much will be required ed," and there is not the slightest doubthat such will be the case; but the Presi dent seems to think that his case, conspic uous as it is, will be made an exception t So many murderers are now escap ing the punishment due their crime through the plea of "temporary insanity" that it is high time our legislators were seriously thinking of making temporary insanity a capital offense. Before Congress invested General GRANT with additional power he should have been required to exhibit some little capacity for an honest and intelligent exercise of the power he already had. The President has appointed HENRY is WINDLER to a California postoffice. This is unlike many of Grant's appointments the appointee being, most probably, Swirdler only m name.

The election of General GRANT was both an insult and an injury to the American people. His re-election would simply be adding injury to that insult and asult to that injury. "Zack Chandler" is the name of a

The Memarch of Minering Lame.

This is the title of the latest of the series in Harper's Library of Select Novels. The Momarch is a purse-proad marchant, who naturally thinks that money is the measure of all values, material and spiritual ailke; and whose character is drawn in fac contrast against that of his son, who has a great concempt for money, and it as present and obtinate is his father; but who is highminded of generous. The story is interesting though anneal. The characters talk in an aunatural relies of smart reparties, und offee it a member necessitent with their parts. Nevertheless, nowed or this kind is to be regarded as a smooth, and the second of the se Diasy of a Besieged Besident.

The Loudon correspondent of the Daily News heroically allowed himself to be shat up in Fars by the victorious Germans, for the cause of journalism. During his five months' voluntary impresonment he fired his daily letters off at random, by balloon and other ansearthly contrivances, and found, on the months' that many of his communications. other anearthly contrivances, and found, on his release, that many of his communications had missed the mark. The book before us, then, gives a very complete narrative of twents in the beleaguesed city, and shows us the Fariaian mob is all its hideousness. It is very likely that one would find it a tedious book to read at one sitting; but it contains many sirking pistures of real life, and gives much useful and inseresting information, whereby one can partially understand and appreciate the kind of abuilty requisite in one who attempts to rale such a nation as Paris. The book as published in paper covers, by Harper & Brothers, and may be had of John P. Morton & Co.

The "Sunbeams" youth of the New York Sun would find a few old almanaces profit sable acquisition. He wouldn't then need to steal new parsgraphs, and he might find a few older than the majority of those he now gets together under his luminous title.

The Capital tells this: "Mrs. Bisine, the accomplished wife of the Speaker, had a difficulty with Mrs. Stockton, the charming better half of the Senstor, about a cook. Meeting at a cliner-table with only the Hon. Fernando Wood between them, Mrs. Stockton, leading forward, said: 'I am sorry, Mrs. Blaine, that we have anything disacreeable between ns.' The Hon. Fernando was fon-siderably embarrassed, not having heard the interesting story of the cook."

One of the greatest affictions under which the Southern press labors is a lot or scalaway local celliors who sheel from exchanges and "adapt!" what is stolen to their own locality. If the editors of Southern papers would weed out this demonstrating element they would one much toward ranking the same they would one much toward ranking the same they would one much toward ranking the same of Southern Journalism. Mashville journals have begun a good work in this respect, and if Memphis papers and few others would follow suit we might occasionally get something ilke a fresh paper from the South.

follow suit we might occasionally get something like a fresh paper from the South.

The Chicago Times occasionally indulges in a little professional pleasantry, like this:

"Mr. Housee White is the responsible editor of the Chicago Tirbune. The editor of the Times has hitherto been led to believe Mr. Housee White to be a more decent person than he is esteemed to be by the generality of people, and has treated him as such in journaistic and personal relations. The editor of the Times as impelled to demounce Mr. Horsee White as a lying seconder and cowardly, dirty dog. The editor of the Times are impelled to demounce Mr. Horsee White as a lying seconder and cowardly, dirty dog. The editor of the Times applies this issue may be entirely and posts it upon his infamous forchead with the adhesiveness of a sheking plaster."

The New York Leader is discouraged about female journalists: "They are not fitted for the work, and cannot do it. And as for taking the risk of introducing them to editorial rooms and civing them charge of departments of a paper, why, it would be suickeds. For our part we would as willingly open the door to his Satenic Majesty as to a single one of them; for wherever they have gone there has been scandal, demoralization, and general trouble. In short, we remert, and we think experience has proved, that man has an exclusive right to journalism, and will have until such time as woman becomes strong enough to forget that he is woman while strengting the part of journalist. Those who causes the pathway of the profession without the first first principles we have no sympathy with. We may plty if they be autichedity in clined, but dead or alive we cannot grant that they are capacitated for the work of Journalism.

Prince Arthur's Scaled Casket,
[Chicago Journal Longon Letter.]
Much currosity is being feit as to the contents of a certain casket which was presented by the late Duke of Wellington to his god-son, Prince Arthur, when he was twelved years old, with attrict injunctions that it should not be opened until his twenty-first britishy. The casket was thoselved scaled to the principal of the Queen's backets. Prince Arthur will stain his majority on the approaching lat of May, when, it is understood, the scale will be broken. Somebody is probably in the secret, but it so, it has never been divinged. As a matter of course, la this betting country, bets are high as to the nature of the content, and it is a fair and interesting subject of curlosity and speculation. I suspect the will be found to contain the laterating subject to the order at some banking-house a considerable num of money, which has been accumulating during the last twenty years. But this is only a guess, and one guess is good as another. You will be last twenty years. But this is only a guess, and one guess is good as another. She resided in this city a few years ago, where she appeared as the proprietress of an eciectic matiliation, located on Sixth street, restricted to the present city dispensary. It was here that she first formed the acquaintance of Colonel James H. Slood, who was at that time City additor and Treatdent of the majority of men until they are divorced. The acquaintanceship between Colonel Blood and Victoria Woodhull ripended into love, and shally, after the necessary separations and shandonments, into marriage. Blood respired this position as City Audstor, deserted his wise, and then ELOYED WITH VICTORIA, who was at that time the reputed wife of Dr. Woochull. A few years afterwards they returned to St. Leuis, and Mrs. Woodhull itted happily under the same roof with both husbands. Victoria is now in member of the goesapure Brood-street firms of Woodhull, Cladin & Co., New York—Sloped Co.—and as has felletiously been asserted, the sleeping or silent partner.
